Singer. Songwriter. Musician. Performer. High School Student. Pet lover. Teen-ager. Old soul. Yogi. Friend. Daughter. Cancer thriver. INSPIRING. These are all words that describe Sage today.

Musically inclined from toddlerhood, Sage has progressed from piano lessons, to vocal instruction, to teaching herself ukulele, to learning guitar and pursuing songwriting. Her performances range from musical theater, to school of the arts shows, to choir, to open mic nights and charity engagements. She plays at rock school gigs, community shopping areas, public markets and private parties. Recently, Sage has been engaged in studio time, recording original songs and covers. These moments and opportunities have helped her become the passionate, talented singer songwriter and entertainer she is today.

Sage learned early that music heals. Her lyrics, voice and approach to performing have been shaped by her life experiences.

Battling cancer does not define Sage, but it has certainly shaped her. She approaches each day with a core appreciation and gratitude for the simple things by not sweating the small stuff. Sage exudes a grace and a maturity uncommon in one her age.

The family motto of “Strong Mind. Strong Body. Strong Spirit” grounds her as she pursues her music career and grows as an artist and performer.

The swallow, Sage’s personal symbol of family and community, represents love and support initiated during treatment. Inspired by the “miracle of the swallow” at the San Juan Capistrano Mission, the swallow continues to direct Sage as she soars along life’s journey with music as her guiding force.
